- I have a spine but no bones,
My pages whisper secret tones.*
- Eight-legged weaver, quick and sly,
I hang my traps where shadows lie.*
- I grin at night with candle's gleam,
Born of pumpkin, carved from dream.*
- Pale as mist, I drift unseen,
Through walls I pass where none have been.*
- Hat of black and bubbling brew,
I cast my spells and cackle too.*
- Shuffling feet and tattered clothes,
I hunt for brains—heaven knows!*
- By silver light my curse begins,
A howl announces all my sins.*
- I cast no shadow, show no face,
Yet hunger lurks in my embrace.*
- When midnight strikes, I start to chime,
Announcing ghosts—it's haunting time.*
- From trash to treasure, what a sight—
I glow with orange, burning bright.*
